Staying Safe from Lightning at the Field

Lightning poses a serious threat during the Little League® regular and tournament seasons. In the United States, lightning activity picks up during the spring and peaks during the summer. Having a plan and knowing what to do when lightning approaches is important for player and fan safety.

This starts with being "weather aware" by staying on top of the latest forecast from a trusted, local meteorologist. A quiet summer day can turn stormy very quickly, so it's important to be ready for quickly changing weather. We use a smartphone app at the field to monitor rain and thunderstorms approaching the area.

Lightning can strike long before it starts raining! In fact, many lightning strike victims are hit before rain begins. Lightning can strike over 10 miles away from a thunderstorm, so action may need to be taken before the wet weather arrives.

If we hear thunder or observe threatening skies, we will be monitoring the situation! It is not safe to be outside when lightning is in your area. Dugouts and pavilions do not provide safe cover during thunderstorms, and never seek shelter under a picnic shelter, under bleachers, or in a shed.

When lightning threatens, seek safety in a sturdy building that has plumbing and electricity. If this isn't an option, seek shelter in a hard-topped vehicle with the windows up. While in the vehicle, don't touch anything metal, or any electronics.

It is safe to head back to the field a minimum of 30 minutes after the thunder and lightning have left the area. We will communicate with team managers in the event of a weather delay.
