Heat illness can be prevented!

Protecting Players from the Effects of Heat

At times, players may be required to play in hot environments for long periods. When the human body's unable to maintain a normal temperature, heat-related illnesses can occur and may result in death. The following article provides information on the how to prevent players illnesses and death caused by heat stress.

Factors that May Cause Heat-related Illness

- High temperature and humidity
- Low fluid consumption
- Direct sun exposure (with no shade) or extreme heat
- Limited air movement (no breeze or wind)
- Physical exertion
- Use of bulky protective clothing and equipment
- Poor physical condition or ongoing health problems
- Some medications
- Pregnancy
- Lack of previous exposure to hot workplaces
- Previous heat-related illness

Health Problems Caused by Hot Environments

Heat Stroke is the most serious heat-related health problem. Heat stroke occurs when the body's temperature regulating system fails and body temperature rises to critical levels (greater than 104°F). This is a medical emergency that may result in death! The signs of heat stroke are confusion, loss of consciousness and seizures. Players experiencing heat stroke have a very high body temperature and may stop sweating. If a player shows signs of possible heat stroke, get medical help immediately, and call 911. Until medical help arrives, move the player to a shady, cool area and remove as much clothing as possible. Wet the player with cool water and circulate the air to speed cooling. Place cold wet cloths, wet towels or ice all over the body or soak the player's clothing with cold water.

Heat Exhaustion is the next most serious heat-related health problem. The signs and symptoms of heat exhaustion are headache, nausea, dizziness, weakness, irritability, confusion, thirst, heavy sweating and a body temperature greater than 100.4°F. Players with heat exhaustion should be removed from the hot area and given liquids to drink. Remove unnecessary clothing including shoes and socks. Cool the player with cold compresses to the head, neck, and face or have the player wash his or her head, face and neck with cold water. Encourage frequent sips of cool water. Players with signs or symptoms of heat exhaustion should be taken to a clinic or emergency room for medical evaluation and treatment. Make sure that someone stays with the player until help arrives. If symptoms worsen, call 911 and get help immediately.

Heat Cramps are muscle pains usually caused by physical exertion in a hot play environment. Heat cramps are caused by the loss of body salts and fluid during sweating. Players with heat cramps should replace fluid loss by drinking water and/or carbohydrate-electrolyte replacement liquids (e.g., sports drinks) every 15 to 20 minutes.
